

Africana Studies (Qatar) Minor

The Africana Studies Minor is an interdisciplinary, joint program shared with Northwestern University in Qatar (Northwestern Qatar). Africana Studies provides a critical understanding of African cultures and societies both within the African continent and in global contexts. Although foregrounding continental perspectives, Africana studies also includes African diasporic studies, whether in an American, European, or Asian context.

The minor covers the length and breadth of Africa and its diaspora through a growing range of disciplines. Courses offered include: anthropology, history, literature, media and communication studies, political science, religious studies, and theology. Students are therefore in a position to engage multiple subjects from a rich range of perspectives, explore varied methodologies and theoretical frameworks, as well as interdisciplinary studies.

Requirements

Code	Title	Credits
Core Courses ¹		3
HIST 1200	EarlyAfrica:Histories&Methods
HIST 1201	Modern Africa
GOVT 2806	African Political Thought
NU ENG 242: African Literature
Elective Courses ²		15
Capstone ³
Total Credits		18

¹ Core courses can also be taken as electives.

² 5 courses from the list of Africana Studies-recognized courses at GU-Q and Northwestern Qatar. Note that not all courses are offered each semester. It is important to consult with your academic advisor to plan a course of study.

³ Students must complete either a thesis, an ePortfolio, or a standard portfolio. Learn more about capstone projects (<https://georgetown.box.com/s/6umymf5bli1m98h797lqkvlaquhphjb6>).