

Australian and New Zealand Studies, Undergraduate Certificate

Undergraduate Certificate in Australian and New Zealand Studies

The Certificate in Australian and New Zealand Studies is awarded to graduating seniors who have successfully completed the requirements described below. Candidacy for the Certificate is open to all Georgetown University undergraduates.

Requirements

Requirements

Candidates for the Certificate in Australian and New Zealand Studies must complete the following requirements:

- Satisfactorily complete six (6) one-semester courses devoted substantially to the study of Australia and New Zealand, 5 courses of which to be selected from disciplines including history, government, economics, sociology/anthropology, demography, public policy, international affairs, literature, fine art, and film arts.
- Completion of the INAF 309 CANZPS tutorial (3 credits) is required of all certificate candidates for the completion of the research paper. The tutorial is offered in both fall and spring semesters.
- Presentation of a research paper of 25 or more pages on a topic in Australian and/or New Zealand Studies, prepared under supervision.

All courses must be taken for letter grades, not pass/fail. At least two of the six courses must be taken at Georgetown University. Courses taken at other universities or in study-abroad programs must be approved by the appropriate dean for transfer credit toward a Georgetown University degree. The research paper must be prepared under the supervision of and approved by a member of the CANZPS faculty (or any other Georgetown faculty member approved by the Director of CANZPS) and will be evaluated by the supervising faculty the Director. The research paper must be of a significantly high academic standard to warrant awarding the Certificate.
