

European Studies, Undergraduate Certificate

---

Certificate programs mark secondary levels of concentration within the bachelor's degree. They are strictly optional and are awarded only in conjunction with the undergraduate degree. Certificate programs should be viewed as a means for focusing interests and structuring elective coursework. Interested students should discuss the certificate and its role within the general bachelor's program with his or her advising dean.

Students studying at the Georgetown University in Qatar campus in Doha, Qatar, can refer to the Georgetown University in Qatar Bulletin section for Certificate options.

- Certificate in African Studies *
- Certificate in Arab Studies *
- Certificate in Asian Studies *
- Certificate in Australian, New Zealand and Pacific Studies
- Certificate in Diplomatic Studies
- Certificate in Eurasian, Russian, and East European Studies *
- Certificate in European Studies *
- Certificate in International Business Diplomacy
- Certificate in South Asian Studies

* Only certificates marked with an (*) are open to Georgetown College students.

Requirements

Requirements

Seven courses plus language study or equivalent

- Coursework in a major European language (other than English) through the advanced level
- Two upper-level European History courses
- One Economics course
- One Government course
- One ideological/cultural elective
- One regional/international elective
- One European Studies Research colloquium (GEST 4961)

Admission to the certificate program is based on an application which reflects a directed, purposeful selection of courses. The application must be turned in by the end of the sophomore year or during the junior year with permission. No applications will be accepted from students with senior standing.

Students must earn a grade of "B" or better in the Senior Colloquium.

For more information and a list of approved courses in the certificate program, see the BMW Center for German and European Studies (<https://cges.georgetown.edu/website>).