

French (Qatar) Minor

With a comprehensive course sequence from beginner to post-advanced levels, students immerse themselves in French language, literature, arts, history, and politics—gaining the cultural and linguistic fluency needed to navigate the Francophone world. Building on Georgetown's strength in international affairs, and engaging with a language spoken on every continent, the program prepares graduates to excel on a global stage.

French minors achieve strong language proficiency while deepening their understanding of French and Francophone societies. By complementing their primary field of study, students strengthen their linguistic, cultural, and literary foundations and sharpen essential skills in writing, research, and critical thinking—opening doors to global opportunities across the humanities, diplomacy, business, and beyond.

Requirements

Students minoring in French must take a total of 6 French classes for a total of 18 credit hours.
